Cenveo-St. Louis Announces Move to Eureka

ST. LOUIS, MO - (July 9, 2010) — In a strategic move designed to enhance seamless print production and to allow for future expansion, Cenveo, Inc. (NYSE: CVO) announces that it will combine its two Cenveo-St. Louis printing facilities and relocate to Eureka, Missouri. Currently, the company has two separate print facilities located in Sunset Hills and Crestwood, Missouri.

Cenveo-St. Louis will move to a 220,000 square-foot facility in Eureka's Industrial Park located along I-44 just twenty miles southwest of St. Louis. The move is expected to begin by mid-July and be complete in early 2011. Cenveo-St. Louis has signed a ten year lease agreement for the Eureka facility.

“Our move to a larger facility clearly demonstrates Cenveo's commitment to St. Louis and the entire Midwest,” says Mike Denny, General Manager of Cenveo-St. Louis. “In addition to the benefits of combined efficiencies and seamless integration that will result in bringing our two St. Louis facilities under one roof, we will also be upgrading equipment and expanding our print capabilities so that we maintain our leadership position of providing the best print solutions in the region.”

Cenveo-St. Louis currently has 198 employees and a combined 130,000 square feet at its main sheet-fed plant at 10300 Watson Road. and its web press facilities located at 1110 Reco Avenue. With the larger space in Eureka and the economic incentives from the state of Missouri, the company is aggressively configuring the facility to allow for the addition of new equipment either purchased or transferred from other Cenveo facilities.
