Cadmus Communications Wins Awards from Printing Industries of Virginia

Richmond, Virginia (March 1, 2005) - Cadmus Communications Corporation (NASDAQ/NM: CDMS) today announced that it received two of the top awards at the Printing Industries of Virginia (PIVA) Best in Print 2004 Awards Banquet. Cadmus' Richmond, VA manufacturing facility was presented with the Best in Show Award for its printing of the Naples Charity Register for Palm Beach Media as well as the inaugural E. Worth Higgins, Jr. Award.

The E. Worth Higgins, Jr. Award is presented by PIVA in recognition of a member company's dedication to the welfare of its employees, clients, community and the printing profession. Cadmus was selected for this prestigious award as a result of the many programs the company has in place for its employees including recognition programs, safety and wellness programs, and training. The company has six full-time trainers on staff in Richmond providing a broad range of skills development and other programs including mandatory diversity classes and technical, leadership, and service training.

"We are very pleased that PIVA has acknowledged Cadmus' efforts to actively engage our employees in initiatives aimed at improving our employee's skills, professional development and health," said Lisa Licata, Senior Vice President of Human Resources. "Cadmus training programs in the areas of leadership, safety, diversity, and skill development distinguish Cadmus from other employers and demonstrate our commitment to the growth of our employees. We are also focusing on wellness programs in all of our sites designed to improve our employees' health and understanding of healthcare. We are proud of what has been accomplished and with the recognition PIVA has shown our Richmond facility."

In addition, this award also recognized Cadmus' Richmond, VA location's commitment to its clients, community and printing profession. The facility actively supports its clients with ongoing education in print production by holding a 2½ day training session for customers on a regular basis. The site is also actively involved in the community through its participation in the Partnership for Achieving Successful Schools sponsored by Governor Warner, the American Heart Association's Heart Walk, Challenge Discovery's Bowl-a-thon, and the Festival of India. The facility supports the printing profession through its active involvement and support of the Association for Graphic Arts Training (AGAT) and working with the board of the National Council for Skill Standards in Graphic Communication (NCSSGC).
