Prous Science Selects Cadmus/KGL for Content Production

Richmond, Virginia (April 26, 2005) - Cadmus Communications Corporation (NASDAQ/NM: CDMS) today announced that Prous Science has selected KnowledgeWorks Global Limited (KGL) to provide content production services for its journals program. KGL is an Indian-based content services company that is majority owned by Cadmus Communications. KGL provides copy-editing, composition and data conversion services to scholarly and educational publishers from facilities in Mumbai and Chennai, India.

Prous Science (www.prous.com), headquartered in Barcelona, Spain, has selected KGL as a preferred outsourced content services provider for copyediting of articles, abstracts and for composition services of journals, including Methods and Findings in Experimental and Clinical Pharmacology. Prous Science is a leading international supplier of high value-added information and communication services for professionals involved in drug research and clinical application. Prous' products are used by leading international pharmaceutical and biotechnological companies, public research centers and regulatory agencies.

"We are pleased to be working with Cadmus/KGL to improve the efficiency of our journal production processes and workflow," said Tom Clark, Publishing Director of Prous Science. "We also welcome their extensive expertise in content coding and typesetting management."

"We are excited to begin a strategic outsourcing relationship with Prous Science, an innovative market leader in pharmacology and drug research," said Steve Hare, President of Cadmus' Publisher Services Group. "We believe that KGL will deliver cost savings, time efficiency, and high quality service as an expert production partner for Prous."
